Lead Hospital
Teacher

I am proud to work as Lead Hospital School Teacher within RTMAT, an organisation whose vision, "We Change Lives," is reflected in everything we do. From the moment I joined Hospital School, I knew it was somewhere I wanted to continue my career.

One of the things I value most is the level of support I have received, and I feel that I am encouraged to develop professionally, and have been provided opportunities, training, and guidance that have helped me grow in confidence and progress within my role. The Trust invests in its staff and creates a culture where learning, collaboration, and continuous improvement are actively encouraged. I have felt trusted, valued, and supported to take on new challenges and responsibilities.

As Lead Hospital School Teacher, I enjoy making a positive difference to the lives of children and young people every day. The personalised and nurturing approach we provide allows us to build meaningful relationships with pupils and support them through some of the most challenging periods of their lives. Seeing students grow in confidence, achieve their goals, and celebrate both small and significant successes is incredibly rewarding.

The pupils continually inspire me with their resilience, and I feel privileged to play a part in supporting their education and future aspirations. What makes this role even more enjoyable is working alongside such dedicated and talented colleagues who share the same commitment to helping young people succeed.

RTMAT has provided me with opportunities to contribute beyond my day-to-day role, engage in wider Trust initiatives, and continue developing my skills as a leader. The support, trust, and opportunities I have been given have strengthened my commitment to the organisation and its vision. I genuinely enjoy coming to work each day, knowing that I am part of a team that changes lives while also investing in and supporting its staff.
